

Stylesheet for Monumenta iuris canonici (MIC)

Draft 2025

For general matters of style, MIC follows the latest edition of Chicago Manual of Style, <https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/>, with some exceptions that are outlined in this brief stylesheet. (Various short summaries of the advice of this style guide are easily available on the internet.)

Bibliographical details follow the notes and bibliography system, helpfully summarized: https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide/citation-guide-1.html.

Since the 18th edition, the Chicago Manual no longer prescribes that the place of publication of a book be indicated, only the publisher. For older books, published before 1950, the MIC recommends that the place of publication is indicated rather than the publisher.

The reason for this is that the name of the publisher is generally irrelevant for older books. Authors are given some flexibility as long as it serves the ultimate purpose of making the book easy to identify.

We do not use a list of abbreviations. If an author refers more than once to any particular journal or encyclopaedia that they wish to abbreviate, they may introduce an abbreviation in their article. If several articles in the same volume abbreviates the same item, the editors will include it in a general list of abbreviations. The short-title system of Chicago usually works well.

For references to canonical works (and similar), the MIC largely applies the rules that Stephan Kuttner laid down in his “Notes on the Presentation of Text and Apparatus in Editing Works of the Decretists and Decretalists”.¹ They are also found in Melodie H. Eichbauer and James A. Brundage, Medieval Canon Law, Appendix 1.² The most important are:

Gratian’s Decretum

D.1 d.a.c.1

D.12 c.5

C.3 d.init. [for the case statement]

C.27 q.1 c.19

C.23 q.4 d.p.c.16

de poen. D.1 c.22

de cons. D.4 c.55

¹ Stephan Kuttner, “Notes on the Presentation of Text and Apparatus in Editing Works of the Decretists and Decretalists.” Traditio (1959): 452-64. Anyone who wishes a pdf of this article should write to Anders Winroth.

² Melodie H. Eichbauer and James A Brundage, Medieval Canon Law (2nd ed.; Taylor & Francis, 2022).

Decretals

1 Comp. 3.37.7 (X 3.50.7)

1 Comp. 3.1.9 (X –)

X 5.9.1 [for Liber extra]

VI 1.2.3 [for Liber Sextus]

Clem. 3.4.12

Extrav. Jo. 4.1

Extrav. comm. 5.2.1

Roman law

Cod. 1.3.32.7

Dig. 19.2.9.pr.

Inst. 1.9.1

Nov. 54.1

Auth. 9.9.11 (Nov. 134.11)

For other sources, we recommend simply spelling out the title, and shortening it for its second appearance, as per Chicago Manual general advice. For the conventional names of collections before 1140, we recommend the forms in Clavis canonum, https://data.mgh.de/databases/clavis/wiki/index.php/Description_of_the_collections.

Manuscripts

References to manuscripts should consist of three elements: city, library, number, with comma between them. City and Library should be given in the language of the relevant country. Library names may be simplified, especially when they include personal names and similar. Elements of the call number may be abbreviated in accordance with general practice. Manuscript lists in Clavis canonum are a good place to find good examples, <https://data.mgh.de/databases/clavis/db/>.

Firenze, Biblioteca Medicea Laurenziana, Plut. LXVI.36.

Darmstadt, Hessische Landes- und Hochschulbibliothek, 2000.

Avranches, Bibliothèque municipale, 141 OR Avranches, Médiathèque, 141.

Città del Vaticano, Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana, Pal. lat. 1621.

München, Bayerische Staatsbibliothek, Clm 13004.